Topics

Briefing on legal developments

Statements by Wizden(Jezithyr)

- A Cease and Desist letter was sent to PJB because she was not handing over infrastructure and assets. Deadline for compliance was the 12th of June.
- The C&D deadline was ignored and was not taken seriously.
- Wizden was in the process of setting up a Registered Association(Non-profit organization) in Germany prior to the C&D and related drama taking place. This process is taking a long time due to bureaucratic hurdles.
- Wizden is currently held in trust by an LLC in the US(Vervana Services) owned by a party within Wizard's Den. This measure gives them access to the LLC's legal team and certain legal remedies. This agreement applies exclusively to Wizard's Den and its staff, not any of the forks.
- Wizden is still pursuing legal action with a civil lawsuit, and looking into potential criminal charges.

Questions by Delta-V(Cyberjoel, Jimboe)

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Requested clarification on why legal counsel is not present in SCC meetings.
 - Legal counsel is under Vervana Services which is also responsible for paying for them. Their time is very expensive, and getting them in this meeting would lead to large costs with little gain.
- Requested clarification on whether pursuing legal action is worth it considering the high costs of the lawsuit, instead of just continuing with the current hub/auth split.

- An international lawsuit would likely cost up to or more than 100k USD. It is possible for this lawsuit to be pursued but fundraising would be needed to fund a part of it.
- Whether it is worth it to pursue this legal action will be decided with the help of this meeting and fork feedback. This money could instead be spent on advertising a fully separate steam page. This would however require that the project be renamed and claims over the Space Station 14 name to be abandoned.
- It is possible that legal action will be required regardless. PJB has consulted with a lawyer and has made her own legal threats.
- Requested clarification on why wizden is not pursuing a settlement with PJB instead of going to court?
 - [Removed for legal reasons]
 - Wizden is confident that PJB's position is extremely weak legally.
 - Wizden believes that PJB having any involvement in the future of Space Station 14 would be disastrous.
- Requested clarification on what Wizden is seeking from the SCC and the downstream forks in general.
 - Wizden is looking for feedback on what downstreams would like to happen, and what action they would like for Wizden to pursue. [Removed for legal reasons]
 - Rebranding is possible, but would be a large PR hit. However a new steam page is an attainable goal.
 - Wizden does not wish for a vote on rebranding or any other action by the SCC at this time.
- Clarification on whether Wizard's Den has attempted to contact github for the github repos back.
 - Github is placing the burden on Wizden for resolving this. Wizden is continuing to attempt to get action from them.
- Clarification on whether Wizard's Den is pursuing punitive actions against PJB.
 - Criminal charges are outside of wizden's hands. This falls on the relevant national authorities.
 - Wizden is only pursuing control of the infrastructure and the Space Station 14 name. They do not wish to pursue punitive action.
- Requested clarification on the origin of ss14, whether any agreements exists on ownership, and how strong Wizden's claim on ownership is
 - SS14 started as a project by people from goon station. It was later abandoned and picked up by bob and zoldorf. PJB came later. Ownership between wizards would be shared. Wizden believes that PJB's claim of sole ownership is severely weakened by this state of affairs.
- Requested clarification on what happened to zoldorf and bob, and what their current ownership status is
 - Both of them passed down the project.
 - Zoldorf fully quit from the project and is no longer involved. Bob heavily disagreed with pjb's actions and intentions.

- Requested clarification on whether zoldorf or any other wizard was consulted for what wizden is currently doing.
 - Zoldorf was consulted and agrees with wizden's actions. Smug is still involved in the project.

Questions by Aurora's Song (pox_sojourner)

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Requested clarification on why someone is giving wizden 100k to pursue this?
 - Wizden is being funded by a person who is passionate about the game and the community, and wants it to succeed.
- Request for clarification on what security risks would exist with a new steam page and a rebrand.
 - There would be no security issue with rebranding. Wizard's Den would have full control of the steam page and related infrastructure.

Questions by Imp Station(fancyplanks)

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Request for clarification on how confident Wizden is that further letters will be taken seriously by PJB, and whether she has actually consulted a lawyer.
 - It is likely that PJB has consulted a lawyer, but it is believed that they are in an early stage of looking at her case.
 - Wizden believes that their position is extremely strong compared to pjb, which will likely force her to seriously consider a settlement.

Questions by Troyeshina Pirates (Amatadorro)

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Requested clarification on what will happen to the community during the ongoing legal action with the hub and auth
 - If PJB comes to her senses then this will soon be sorted, otherwise it is possible that this will take a long time and that PJB will pursue actions against Wizard's Den.
 - Once this situation is resolved, then wizard's den will merge the infrastructure back as seamlessly as possible. Some issues with accounts may occur.
- Requested clarification on what could happen on the steam page before everything is resolved.
 - [Removed for Legal Reasons]
 - [Removed for Legal Reasons]

Questions by FairlySadPanda

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Requested clarification on what exactly was the leadership structure of Wizden before restructuring, what PJB's responsibilities actually were, and whether PJB's actions were generally understood to be within her authority
 - After the letter, authority went to Zoldorf who attempted to fix the project before PJB returned.
 - PJB had centralized power within the project. The ownership roles and powers she had over infrastructure such as github in the aftermath of the staff letter was not touched as a gesture of good faith. These powers were later abused.

Questions by Frontier Station(Mace)

Sub-bullets are to be interpreted as a response from Wizard's Den. NOT as facts.

- Requested an ETA on the conclusion of legal action.
 - Responded by Jimboe instead of Jezithyr: There is no ETA. Could take months or longer.

Summary

Wizard's Den is still pursuing legal action against PJB. A lawsuit against PJB would be extremely expensive and these resources could be spent elsewhere. Wizard's Den believes their legal position is very strong and will try to pursue a settlement with PJB, but they believe that her maintaining any control over the project would be disastrous. Wizard's Den would like to get feedback from forks on alternatives such as rebranding into a new project and thus leaving the previous infrastructure and the Space Station 14 name behind. It is hard to say when this situation will be resolved, but it might take months or longer. Should wizden succeed in gaining back control of infrastructure, they will attempt to merge everything back together as seamlessly as possible.

Briefing on PJB's statement

- Item largely merged into previous agenda item. Some statements and questions remained which will be noted here.
- PJB's Statement was read out and summarized by Jamboe.

- FairlySadPanda explained the implications of PJB remaining in control of auth, steam page, and engine. This would leave her in a much stronger position compared to the closest equivalent(Byond and LummoX). It would also allow PJB to prohibit individuals from holding ss14 accounts or for her impersonate them. PJB would also likely remain in nominal control of the financial resources used to maintain ss14 infrastructure.
- At the request of Jimboe, wizden(Jezithyr) confirmed that Wizden is capable of maintaining the engine without PJB's expertise. This relies on PJB not remaining in the project as further involvement would lead to several engine maintainers that have returned to immediately leave. Wizden does not believe that PJB is irreplaceable.
- Imp Station(fancyplanks) requested clarification on whether the claims that PJB's claims that wizden is facing internal drama and loss of staff for issues unrelated to her are true. Wizden(Jezithyr) believes that it is not true, and any staff going inactive or leaving are doing so as a result from stress, burnout, or personal liability related to PJB's actions.
- Jimboe and Jezithyr noted that forks should be extremely careful with how they speak outside SCC. People who may have had access to tools controlled by PJB, such as admins, should not make use of them. This is to minimize legal liability.
- cyberjoel wanted it noted that they would support a rebranding. They support their position due to the fact that ss14 downstreams have evolved much further than just Space Station. As such a rebranding would better represent the community, and would allow for resources to be used to improve it instead of them going to the legal battle.
 - Jimboe added to the statement that while they do not wish for a rebranding due to its PR and community implications. They and fellow Delta-V PMs are prepared for this possibility.
- Further discussion and opinions on how to proceed are tabled.

Summary

Taking PJB's deal would leave her in a very powerful position which would allow her to interfere with Space Station 14 in the future. Wizard's den denies claims that there are staff going inactive or leaving due to internal issues unrelated to PJB's situation. It claims that those cases are the fallout of PJB's conduct. It believes that it is capable of maintaining the engine without PJB's expertise, but this capability is dependent on PJB no longer being involved with the project as otherwise key maintainers would quit.

Forked Steam Pages

- Topic was discussed during the "Briefing on Legal Developments" item.

Alternative Auth options

- Topic tabled.

New server introductions

- Mriya introduced by HardPlayer. Introduction directly bellow as written:
 - We are currently a small community of Ukrainian players with three Space Station 14 servers, each featuring a unique theme, so to speak. Our long-term goal is to become the 'hub' for the entire Ukrainian gaming community
- Jamboree introduced by Bibble. Jamboree is a new server to Space Station 14. Their main goal is currently to introduce a mutation system.

Carry Over Topics of discussion

- A report was received that there was a vote discussion leak within the SCC. Chief_Engineer is offering to provide an anonymous message service to mitigate the risks of a leak. This would provide anonymity, but could also be used to misrepresent a position as more popular than it actually is. Moderators would be able to audit these messages and tell who is sending them in order to deal with this concern, but this is imperfect. An alternative is to just be aware of the possible manipulation.
